8. You don't have a performance manager assigned to you. Contact your performance administrator for assistance.

Q: How do I copy a Performance Contract from one of my colleagues?

A: You need your manager's assistance to copy a colleague's contract.

Click here for more details.

Q: Can I use an old Performance Contract for a new performance year?

A: You can copy the old contract to the new year and amend its contents as needed. You cannot change an old contract's performance year to a new year. Start creating the contract and then select the Copy from Previous option.

Click here for more details.

Q: How do I create a new Performance Contract using a template from the library?

A: Start creating the contract and select the Copy from Template option. Search the library using appropriate key words. Use the Preview icon to check the template contents before creating the contract.

Click here for more details.

Q: How do I delete a review period on a contract?

A: Look for and click the DELETE icon in the applicable review period. Confirm your intention by providing a reason and acknowledging the deletion.

Your Performance Contract's number of review periods is fixed. Therefore, clicking the DELETE button below does not delete the review period, it clears out all objectives you may have loaded into any section on your agreement from the chosen review period.

Q: I want to re-open my agreement, but the MODIFY OBJECTIVES button on the dashboard is disabled. What must I do?

A: Once your manager approves your agreement, the MODIFY OBJECTIVES button is disabled. The solution needs two steps.

1. Ask your manager to click MODIFY OBJECTIVES on your contract from his/her Performance Management Dashboard.
2. Then, you have to click MODIFY OBJECTIVES on your contract, from your Performance Management Dashboard.

Click here for more details.

Q: In the setup of the Performance Management module, a performance year has three items (2 reviews and one survey), but on my dashboard, I can only see one review period. Why?

A: If the configuration of the Performance Management module is changed after people started creating contracts, existing contracts might not necessarily be changed accordingly. A Performance Contract is created with certain parameters defined in the configuration; if the configuration is changed the contract is not. Ask your Performance Administrator for assistance, but it will probably entail the removal of your Performance Contract and the creation of a new contract.

FOR THE PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT ADMINISTRATOR: During the configuration of the performance management product, you have to do the following steps in this exact order.

1. Create a new Review Setup.
 2. Add all the review items (review periods) at once. I.e. not one now and another later on.
 3. Create a new Review Year.
 4. In the review year's Review Setup, link a review setup comprising the three review items. If the review items are changing after the linking took place, there will be a mismatch. Delink the review setup and relink it again.

Q: Where can I see my team's contracts?

A: Every employee - who is part of the performance management process - can see their performance management dashboard and performance years. A manager can also see the teams they are responsible for by switching between their dashboard, and those of the teams.

Look for the toggle button at the top of your performance dashboard to switch between your own contacts and the contacts of your team.

2. Click the objective's More/Action icon.

Q: What is a Check-in used for?

A: The Check-in functionality is a bridge between the Objective Setting phase and the Review phase. Once a Performance Agreement is approved (usually at the beginning of the performance year) it is locked until it is time for the review, which usually happens at the end of each review period. Between these two phases, a manager and employee could do regular evaluations or check-ups on the employee's objectives to correct and guide performance as needed.

Click here for more details.

Q: How do I check in on an objective? (Manager's perspective)

A: A manager will take the initiative to check in on an objective and will take this approach.

1. Locate the employee's contract on which the check-in is to be conducted.
2. Click the CHECK-IN button.

CHECK IN

3. Go through the employee's list of objectives and choose one to evaluate. Click its record to open the Check-in feedback screen.
4. Use the Rating toggle button to indicate current progress sentiment i.e. On Track or Not On Track.

1. Return to the objective having the comment and click its record to open it.
2. On the Check-in feedback screen, locate and click the link EDIT LAST COMMENT to open the comment field.
3. Make the change and click SAVE.

Q: I am busy scoring my first assessment/review period, but then I realised one of the objectives on my Performance Agreement changed substantially in character. What is the best approach?

A: Here are two scenarios to consider.

Scenario 1 - The objective that was changed, is a KPA.

Solutions:

Quickest: Leave the KPA (and its KPIs) as is but EXCLUDE the KPI(s) when scoring them. This will not affect the assessment period score. Then, after creating the next review period, MODIFY the agreement and amend the objective(s). Approve everything again. At the start of every subsequent review period, there is an opportunity for re-contracting.

Longer route: If you have to amend the KPA and/or KPI(s) before scoring, ask your manager to MODIFY the assessment period, then MODIFY the assessment period from your side as well. The objectives will now be open for editing, but you will have to amend them and then re-submit the agreement and get it re-approved by your manager.

Scenario 2 - The objective that was changed, is not a KPA (e.g., it is a Key Competency or a Company Value)

Solutions:

Since only the KPA objectives can be excluded when scoring, you have the following options.

Quickest: Give the objective the average section score - not affecting the section score. Remember to provide an explanatory note for your scoring decision. Then, after creating the next review period, MODIFY the agreement and amend the objective(s). Approve everything again. At the start of every subsequent review period, there is an opportunity for re-contracting.

Longer route: If you have to amend the objective, ask your manager to MODIFY the assessment period, then MODIFY the period from your side as well. The objectives will now be open for editing, but you will have to amend them and then re-submit the agreement and get it re-approved by your manager.
